

Clara's 1918-1920s Nightgowns

Nightgowns have been made of many materials, from silk and satin to cotton or rayon. In the late 1910s and early 20s, most nightgowns were made of silk or batiste, which is a lightweight cotton or linen. Earlier Victorian and Edwardian nightgowns could be quite elaborate, but soon became a little simpler. Still, these simple A-line nighties have elaborate details, including lace, ribbons, and pintucks.
